

The “Describe” json is a high level description of the game. It has the following fields:

Name

The name of the game

Demo?

A checkbox - if checked, this game is one of the games in the demo call for Ludio. Unchecked by default.

Parallel?

A checkbox - if checked, this game allows multiple instances of itself to be run in parallel in a single call. Unchecked by default.

Google Sheet ID

Deprecated, leave blank.

URL

This references a particular repo that the game needs to successfully run in Ludio.

For card games use: ../setups/ludio-v1-engine-setup/dist_cards/app.output.js

For other games use: ../setups/ludio-v1-engine-setup/dist/app.output.js

A “card game” is any game that uses card-related actions like createDeck, createCard, etc.

Description

A json that should always have at least these fields: summary, description_title, # Players, players, and duration.

“summary” is 1-2 sentence description of the game.

“description_title” should be “[game name] Overview”

“# Players” and “players” is a string representing the player count. They should be the same, they are used by the Ludio website in different places. Each field is either a range (3-14), a single number (2), or has a lower bound (1+).

“Duration” is a string for the duration of the game. Typically it “X mins”, “X mins/player”, or “X mins/round” where X is some integer.

An example:

```
{
  "summary": "Find the Witches before they curse everyone in Munchkin Land!",
  "description_title": "A Night in Oz Overview",
}
```

```
"# Players": "3-14",
"players": "3-14",
"Duration": "10 mins"
}
```

Rules

This is a json array with different sections in the rulebook. You can read about the different sections here: Describe setups

Most games will feature the Basic Rules section and the Win Condition section. Simple games can skip the Win Condition section. Advanced games might have more sections: Advanced Rules, Day Voting, and Mechanics.
